Slot's relief may not last long

» December's here and the new month brings two fantastic chances to become a multi-millionaire in a few hours if you get all 13 matches correct in a Soccer 13 bet: a guaranteed R7.4-million pool tonight and then a whopping guaranteed R43-million pool this Saturday - plus TAB is offering four cash-boosted pools through the weekend including two Soccer 10 pools with cash add-ins of R200,000 apiece that will ensure inflated payouts!

By Mark Gleeson

There would have been much relief for Liverpool, and particularly their manager Arne Slot, after last Sunday's win at West Ham United, but tonight they face another potential banana skin. Ordinarily, a home win over recently promoted Sunderland would be regarded as a banker bet, but Liverpool's early season woes might not be over yet and there is every chance Sunderland could force some sort of upset. The game is M2 in tonight's guaranteed R7.4-million Soccer 13 pot.

The stats are firmly in Liverpool's favour because at Anfield they have won their last 12 top-flight matches against newly promoted clubs. The only worry is that Sunderland are playing way above the level normally delivered by newly promoted clubs. They lead all of Manchester United, Liverpool, Tottenham Hotspur and Newcastle United in sixth place and only trail fifth-placed Brighton on goal difference. And last weekend they wrote club history when for the first time - after 188 attempts - they came back from 2-0 down to win an EPL game, beating Bournemouth 3-2. Log-leaders Arsenal have another London derby tonight that comes swiftly after a 1-1 draw at Chelsea last Sunday, when a lethargic display was the consequence of a brutal run of matches against Tottenham Hotspur, Bayern Munich and the title-chasing Blues. Now they meet Brentford and their healthy five-point lead at the summit of the EPL table is not likely to be diminished. They look a banker bet to win in M3 in the big Soccer 13. Chelsea take a hot streak of away form to Elland Road to meet Leeds United. They have won five and drawn one of their last six games on the road and have also found the back of the net in all 10 of their away games this term. The EPL action continues at the weekend with six games included in Saturday's R43-million Soccer 13 with many punters likely to rely on Newcastle to win at home against Burnley. Getting back to tonight, there are also Premier Soccer League fixtures as Kaizer Chiefs travel away to bottom-placed Chippa United with continuing injury concerns and still lacking conviction. Chippa host the match at the Nelson Mandela Bay Stadium in Gqeberha, looking for only their second victory of the season in their 15th game of the campaign. They will be the first club to reach the halfway point this season. Chippa have been through four coaches already this season and Vusimusi Vilakazi is their fifth, but not expected to last long either. He could stretch his tenure with an upset win over Chiefs. Mamelodi Sundowns should return to the summit of the league by beating Siwelele in Bloemfontein, although they will end the year having played one league game more than Pirates, who were supposed to take on Richards Bay tonight. That game, however, is postponed because Pirates meet Marumo Gallants in the Carling Knockout final in Polokwane on Saturday, when the Buccaneers are favourites to win a second piece of silverware for the season. They are on a 16-match unbeaten run in domestic competition this season with Gallants the last side to beat them back in August. That win will provide Gallants with the confidence they need to stage an upset - and remember last year's final saw rookies Magesi shock highly fancied Sundowns. The game is M10 in Saturday's R200,000-added Soccer 10 bet and is also included in the R200,000 carryover Soccer Any 13 Xtra.

Brest are on a winning streak of two games in Ligue 1 and Monaco have won four of their last eight in all competitions. Brest won the last clash between the two teams 2-1 in April, but Monaco are seventh in the table and seven points ahead of 11th-placed Brest after 14 games.
