PSG will be out for revenge

➔ Last-16 Champions League clashes are adding plenty of spice to TAB soccer pools ahead of a weekend loaded with opportunities to score big, notably a guaranteed R23-million jackpot for all-13-correct in Saturday's Soccer 13 and cash-boosted Soccer 10 bets on Friday and Saturday with likely total pools of R2 million - all in all another great week to enhance your enjoyment of football and stand a chance to win wads of lovely cash with a TAB soccer bet.

By Mark Gleeson

Tonight's Champions League ties are an intriguing array of high-profile clashes, with the holders in action as well as the top two challengers from England.

Paris St Germain suffered a surprise reversal in domestic league action last Friday and have seen their Ligue 1 lead whittled down to a single point.

Just like last season on route to lifting their first Champions League trophy, PSG missed out on automatic last-16 qualification this term and were forced to enter the knockout round playoffs after finishing 11th in the League Phase, in which they won just one of their final five matches.

But they did get past Monaco to book a meeting with Chelsea, who they met in last July's Club World Cup final when Cole Palmer inspired the English side to a 3-0 victory in New York.

But PSG head into the clash with Chelsea having lost only one of their last eight games against English opposition in European club competition.

Chelsea are one of six English clubs in the last 16 of this season's Champions League after finishing sixth in the 36-team League Phase standings, winning five, drawing one and losing the other two of their eight matches.

Arsenal are another and they go to Germany to meet Bayer Leverkusen on the back of their fourth straight victory in all tournaments, as a second-string side edged out a plucky Mansfield Town outfit 2-1 in the FA Cup last weekend.

They will not find it easy tonight as Leverkusen have strung together a six-match unbeaten streak at home, conceding just one goal in 540 minutes of football.

More English representation comes in the form of Manchester City, who are at Real Madrid for a 16th Champions League meeting between the two giants. This eagerly anticipated fixture is the first in the competition's history to be played in the knockout stages in five consecutive campaigns.

The key Real Madrid duo of Kylian Mbappe (knee) and Jude

Bellingham (hamstring) are both expected to miss the contest through injury, joining Rodrygo (ACL), Eder Militao (hamstring), Dani Ceballos and Alvaro Carreras (calf) on the sidelines. But for City, Erling Haaland is expected to start up front. The Norwegian has scored 56 goals in as many Champions League appearances and 10 in his last 10 matches against Spanish opposition in the competition, including a penalty converted at the Bernabéu in December when City won 2-1.

Bodo/Glimt are the surprise package of the competition and can cause further shockwaves tonight when they host Sporting Lisbon.

The Norwegian upstarts once again defied the odds to eliminate last season's runners-up Inter Milan in the playoffs last month.

The last two times Sporting have got to this stage of the Champions League, they have lost, suffering a 12-1 aggregate defeat to Bayern Munich in 2009 and a 5-0 loss to Manchester City in 2022.

The Lisbon club struggles on the road as is evidenced by no away victory from this stage onwards in 15 European matches since 2005. That suggests they could face a difficult test this evening.

Looking ahead to the weekend English Premier League and Betway Premiership clashes resume after pausing for cup matches last weekend. EPL log-leaders Arsenal are at home to Everton on Saturday and should prevail, while later in the evening Manchester City take on West Ham in London.

It might prove no easy assignment for City who could hand Arsenal the league title on a plate if they do not come away with all three points.
